This Nursing Forum 2020 Conference will provide you with an exemplary research experience and huge ideas.

Nursing is a profession within the health care sector focused on the care of individuals, families, and communities so they may attain, maintain, or recover optimal health and quality of life. Nurses may be differentiated from other health care providers by their approach to patient care, training, and scope of practice. Nurses practice in many specialties with differing levels of prescription authority. Many nurses provide care within the ordering scope of physicians, and this traditional role has shaped the public image of nurses as care providers. However, nurse practitioners are permitted by most jurisdictions to practice independently in a variety of settings. Nurses develop a plan of care, working collaboratively with physicians, therapists, the patient, the patient's family and other team members, that focus on treating illness to improve quality of life.

Nurses do not have the authority to prescribe medications, although there are some exceptions. All medications administered by nurses must be from a medication prescription from a licensed practitioner, such as a physician. Nurses are legally responsible for the drugs they administer.

People who have missed attending the past conference are most welcome to present your research ideas at the Nursing Forum 2020 Conference. This conference will help you improve networking with eminent people in the field of healthcare.
