Rhytidectomy starting from the bases

Diana Marquez Ruiz
San Luis Potosi, Mexico

There have been over the years many types of surgeries and procedures to prevent and correct the signs of age in the face. But even though they are quite interesting and many try to be less invasive we have noticed that the techniques that involve making changes from more deep planes are the ones that produce better results. Also the decision of making in the first surgery the more aggressive tuck up has been demonstrated to be of more benefit that to do very small changes, because the patient will need a correction surgery in less time.
