Who's keeping score? A quantitative approach to trial feasibility

Luke Stewart

Saama Technologies, USA

With most trials failing to meet enrollment timelines, current approaches for feasibility are failing to identify and minimize risk. Sponsors must arm themselves with the right tools to own this analysis throughout the trial lifecycle. We will discuss a quantitative approach that operationalizes feasibility score tracking: Enrollment time, avoid additional trial costs, ensure on-time completion, mitigate trial risk, patient retention, identify patient burden, locate geographically convenient patients and find investigators with solid patient relationships.
