Gelderse Vallei Hospital, Netherlands

Atrial fibrillation and heart failure: Focus on NOACs

Biography

FR den Hartog is trained as a cardiologist in the Onze Lieve Vrouw Gasthuis (OLVG) in Amsterdam. He then worked as a cardiologist in Rotterdam. In 1989 he started at the Gelderse Vallei Hospital. From Rotterdam, he introduced cardio-vascular research in the Gelderse Vallei Hospital. Currently, this has grown into a large department of cardiovascular research, which participates in many international studies. For this, this department works together with many cardiology clinics in the Netherlands. Special interest exists in lipid (cholesterol) disorders, heart failure, and atrial fibrillation. He is also medical manager of the cardiology department.
