

Energy alterations and chakras energy deficiencies in patients with post polio syndrome

Introduction: Post-polio syndrome (PPS) is characterized by progressive muscle weakness due to former infection with poliomyelitis and is often associated with other symptoms such as muscle fatigue, muscle and or joint pain, cold intolerance (CI) and sleep disorders. Poliomyelitis for TCM is a syndrome of humidity/heat caused by an external factor (virus), initially compromising the gastrointestinal system and causing fever. The external agents responsible for the illness are called “perverse energy”. Once the first layer of defense is broken the virus or “wicked energy” is directed towards the internal organs, specifically the Liver and Kidneys.

Purpose: Demonstrate that polio patients had an energy imbalance and energy deficiency in the chakras that facilitated the development of the disease.

Methods: Through two clinical cases of two female patients one with 42 and the other with 67 years, both presented flaccid paralysis in one of the lower limbs due to post polio syndrome. Both received a measurement of the energy of the chakras which showed complete energy deficiency in all chakras, except for the seventh, which was normal. Chakra energy replacement treatment with homeopathies was started according to the Constitutional Homeopathy of Five elements based on Traditional Chinese Medicine.

Results: Both patients improved the physical, mental, emotional and pain conditions that they had and continue to be treated today, but there was no change in the flaccid paralysis during the treatment period.

Conclusion: Both patients in the report had a complete deficiency of the chakras, but the author does not know if at the time of contagion and development of the infectious process, the patients also had this deficiency in the chakras. However, restoring chakra energy in patients with this energy deficiency could be an option for preventing this disease associated with vaccines today.
