ABSTRACT

Presently the area of identity theory considerably in touch with in different studies. The target and major aim that usually having a pivotal place with regard to the development of major theories of identity has been for the realization of recognition, preservation and respect building towards diversity and diverse identity alongside of such considerable mission taking holding relationship building among those diverse having communities as well as preservation of human and democratic right. Likewise, cohesion building while a time of problem as if also among the major area taking into account in other similar development of theory of identity. In addition to the above developed area of identity theory aim building other study gap also identified and theories are built for similar area of stating identity once belongs. So therefore, for this considerable area of stating identity of own either communally exist or individually taking hold three theories have been included and discussed as the major result of this work. The three theories include submissive, additive and normative. These are well justified in exhaustive way as the major study part.

Keyword; Submissive, Additive, Normative, Stating Identity

INTRODUCTION

In the area of diversity and diverse identity, various theories have been developed at present. In such way, among the pioneers that initially developed in consideration to the area of diversity democracy, Sociocultural relativism and others are the majors. Those theories target to pave the lane towards the recognition and preservation of all exist diversity and diverse identity of any kind not only the norms, ethical values, societal moral values but also inclusively taking into consideration the area of cultural restoration as well as cohesion building (9Meseret Bekele, 2020; 4Meseret Bekele, 2021). In other similar study, social cultural transformation and cohesion building has been also taking into account. Among such, the one that included within former study, submissive theory of identity, with other newly developed for the purpose of guiding the way identity could be stated either communally or privately owned as if also amid as included with in this study. What is largely consideration giving while theories of identity usually developed while taking into holding the way transformation of any taking place as if forcefully and coercively or systematically waying to transformation is illegal and could be regarded as internationally criminal act. The justification of those studies totally consideration given as to be banned at international recognized work of against humanity (5Meseret Bekele, 2020). In other part of theory development, categorization of general culture into its own elements to uphold and advance all respective cultural elements to more uphold the general culture in advance has been also well justified. Besides, this cultural restoration in pragmatic way to rebuild those formerly hampered and damaged as if among the area of consideration given (4Meseret Bekele, 2021; 6Meseret Bekele, 2021). In the same area of diversity and diverse identity with in this study, the gap highlighted in the area of stating owned identity that either communally or personally as stating of such requires the general and specific guideline as an approach to be handled in universal way. For the same purpose, this study consoling with new identity theories to coming up with the way identity of own to be stated in universal way bases on pre designed study objectives as follows i) to develop theories of identity to fundamental assumption for stating own identity ii) to analyze the developed theories iii) to give justification for the develop theories in reasonable way

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The study taking into consideration to coming up with the universally acceptable way of stating own identity either single identity mentioning or bi-identity and beyond. For the same case, the way identity of any kind should be stated based on the already developed theories of identity as the guideline as if taking into account. At initial level as usually consideration given at present time as if stating usually a single identity among diversely exist identity and other reality on the group among any respective community for the member of respective general community as if possible. However, while consideration giving of acquiring diverse identity of any including linguistic based ethnicity and cultural elements as if stating of such requires some sort of universal guiding line. For the same purpose the study result treated the major three theories of identity to universalize the way stating identity acquired taking place. In such case for a sort of single based acquiring and stating the same acquired identity among existing diversity as well as status of bi-identity and beyond appropriately mentioning as if possible based on the principle and philosophical assumption of these three theories using as the guiding line to be consideration given as below as all theories separately discussed and justified.

Submissive theory of identity

In the area of diversity democracy mentioning or stating the identity once acquired in person as well as a member of certain community as if consideration given as among the right to be taking into hold. As diversity democracy stresses on diversity and diverse identity of any kind must be recognized and positively seen as if elsewhere exist the one that acquiring such respective identity can have the right to state in appropriate way without any manipulative influence from other body. In other instance acquiring must be accompanied by appropriately stating of the acquired identity of any in legal while needed. In such case, as highlighted above stating the identity once acquired mean that among diversely exist identity a certain community or member of certain community as an individual level can hold more than single identity. For the case, the acquired can have an opportunity of stating the acquired identity either bi-identity or beyond concurrently. The case of stating beyond bi-identity usually considered as the assumption taking hold belongs to submissive theory of identity. In other word, not only stating single identity in case of Normative theory of identity but also stating while necessary the identity up hold of more than single or bi-identity of diversity and diverse identity as if possible.

Likewise, submissive theory of identity developed for the area of consideration giving of identity transformation and cohesion building but for similar purpose identity up holding add upping to the newly developed theory with in this study as also taking place as among the major theory to justify reasonability of stating multiple identity that acquired by any entity. In other words, the same theory formerly developed as theory of identity in the area of identity transformation and cohesion building as well coming up with additional identity theory for the area of universalizing the way identity stating taking into consideration with in this study. For the case among the theories that taking into account towards the possibility of extending stating identity the first one is Submissive theory of identity usually possible to state the already handled all diverse identity the one that belong and familiarize with of all at least more than two or beyond. In such case with positive attitude developing towards all diverse identity that the person or the community building familiarity with as if stating all belongs to me personally at private level or all belongs to us as the communal level without edifice distinction. In such way, without partiality, preconception, discrimination, prejudice, stereotype and jaundiced eye taking hold towards any that the entity consideration given know well and accustomed with usually language matters of identity of such as the case of multilingualism possibly must be likely consideration given while the one that with fluency or partially acquiring skill of communication in the area of linguistic study as if commonly stating all belongs to us as the case make us to communicate each other or with others possibly without alien mentioning in relation to the lack and absence of communication as the case issue of course related to the linguistically consideration giving of all that the consideration giving familiar with as if stating all belongs and I know you know and stating all totally belongs to us as the case all as if among the consideration giving of the same totally all makes one and unity with in diversity as all also the identity belongs to us in common. The linguistic area of consideration giving also considerably followed by other diversity and diverse identity area of consideration giving.

ADDITIVE THEORY OF IDENTITY

The second theory is additive theory of identity. This theory take into holding the possibility of stating bi-identity stating concurrently at a time by any concerned body while needed. That is to mean according to the principle and fundamental assumption of this theory, not only acquiring two or bi-identity but also stating concurrently at a time as if possible. In such a way, the issue consideration giving that possibly holding by the person or the community in general as the case of linguistic sharing as well as other shared identity possibility of mentioning at a time should be encouraged. Otherwise, might lead to the issue of discrimination towards certain diverse identity while selecting from the acquired might followed by certain lose of positivity towards the one ignored while stating. As the case encourageable taking place of stating the owned identity whether the case of communal level or interestingly privately owned both togetherly ours without distinction might lead to same sort of positivity towards the one acquired stating and beyond.

NORMATIVE THEORY OF IDENTITY

This theory stresses on the possibility of stating single based owned identity of any kind. In other words, mentioning only single identity as commonly seen nowadays as if Normative identity theory of only acquiring and stating single identity of the considerable person belongs or the community in general acquiring as if more than one familiarity acquiring might exist but mentioning only single among as if commonly consideration giving under normative identity theory.

CONCLUSION

As stated in the main body three theories of identity have been developed, justified and reasonably analyzed. As to such among those theories the newly developed include Normative and Additive theories of identity as well as the other Submissive theory of identity usually included from the one formerly develop theory in the area of cohesion building transforming well done with consent of all in some area of identity usually not all total change.
