Introduction

In recent times, there have been reports of the use of “Medical Marijuana” and Cannabis in helping to gain relief from the symptoms in autism. This editorial seeks to present the facts about the underlying mechanism of what brings about the effect of the “improvements”, although temporary in most cases, that have been reported where either the parents of a child with autism or the child / person with autism has used or has been administered cannabis in one form or the other.

In my healing practice of applying Intent Healing in healing the limiting symptoms in autism, I have come across four cases so far where the parents of the children with autism have used medical marijuana and / or cannabis either for themselves or administered the same to their child with autism. In all four cases they had reported some improvements in the symptoms of autism in the child that was not long-lasting. Since they were not able to see the complete healing of all the limiting symptoms they continued to look for other alternatives that work in autism and had found their way to Intent Healing.

Effect of cannabis / medical marijuana on the parents: The energies of the parents came into alignment, which means the energies opened up with the positive and natural inward flow of the energies / life force in the initial few days of smoking cannabis. However, with the daily use of cannabis and / or medical marijuana, this positive energy aligned state was totally lost and the energy picture showed a stressed state with little or no shift in this stressed picture even after stopping the drugs. By this time, the side-effects of the drugs took over, along with intense craving for the drugs. Interestingly, in the initial days of using the drugs by the parents, they reported feeling relaxed and calm and correspondingly, the child with autism too started showing improvements in the symptoms. These “benefits” were however short-lived because once the energy picture shifted to the stressed state upon continued use of the drugs, the side-effects in the parents worsened and the limiting symptoms of autism worsened in the child, with the child becoming more violent than before.

Effect of cannabis / medical marijuana on the child with autism: In the cases where only the child with autism was being administered cannabis and / or marijuana and the parents were not using the same, the child showed improvements in the limiting symptoms in the initial days of being administered the drugs. However, on daily administration of the same, the child's energies went out of alignment and into the stressed energy mode and the child started demonstrating violent behaviour towards others and self-injurious behavior too, such as head-banging and biting of own hands / forearms.

Conclusion

There are two things that became clear from working with the parents who had tried cannabis/medical marijuana either for themselves or for their child with Autism:

The temporary beneficial effects of cannabis both in the parents and in the child with autism are due to the fact that cannabis works at the level of the Energies of the parents and the child with autism. The improvements in the symptoms in the child with autism are brought about by the temporary state of Energy Alignment. This again CONFIRMS the Energy basis for all the limiting symptoms in autism. In other words, all the limiting symptoms in autism are caused due to the disturbances in the Energy Fields of the parents and the child. And once these energy disturbances are corrected, the limiting symptoms disappear. This has been explained in great detail in the online course on ‘The Energy Basis Of Autism And The Solution’ here : authenticautismsolutions.usefedora.com

In cases where only the parents were taking cannabis/medical marijuana, in the initial stages of using medical marijuana, the ENERGIES of the parents came into alignment when they used the drugs and therefore that opened up the flow of the life force through them and they too feel relaxed. This state of Energy Alignment in them was experienced by the autistic child (as the autistic child is energetically connected with the parents) and the child's energies too came into alignment and therefore some of the limiting symptoms improved in the child.

BUT, this relief in the parents and the improvements in the symptoms in the autistic child are short-lived and temporary. On continued use of cannabis and / or marijuana, the “beneficial effects” wears-off and disappears because continuous use of these drugs pushes the energy fields to a stressful state and the side-effects of the drugs take over. The energy assessments revealed that the state of energy alignment that was achieved in the initial days of the use of cannabis / marijuana was completely lost with daily use of the drugs.

There is no necessity for the parents and the children with autism to suffer from the confusion and disappointment of experiencing the temporary relief and then the more dangerous side-effects of using drugs such as cannabis and medical marijuana, now that there is a perfectly safe, non-invasive healing approach based on the science of Applied Energy Medicine and Applied Intentional Epigenetics that is available today in healing the limiting symptoms in autism. Not just that, by applying the method of Intent Healing one can see the results of the limiting symptoms of autism disappearing from day one.

And more importantly, the child / person with autism then begins to thrive with his / her unique gifts and talents having gained complete freedom from all the limiting symptoms of autism.

Why suffer from the side-effects of Cannabis and Medical Marijuana in autism while there is a Safe, NATURAL, Effective and Holistic Solution in autism that is already working on the ground?
